PROGRAM

SEVENTH ANNUAL SESSION

OHIO STATE EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

KEYNOTE:

Expertness in Teaching

Thursday, Friday, and Saturday,

April 7, 8, and 9, 1927

Published fortnightly, except during June, July, and August, with but one issue in December, by the Bureau of Educational Research, Ohio State University.
Entered as Second-Class Matter February 9, 1922, at the Post-Office at Columbus, Ohio, under the Act of August 24, 1912. Accepted for mailing at specified rates of postage provided for in Section 1103, Act of October 3, 1917, authorized February 21, 1922.

GREETING

THE CALL for teachers of skill continues to be heard. It is as insistent in Ohio as it is elsewhere, and the multiplication of higher educational institutions has apparently augmented the appreciation and the demand. Our State School Commissioners have, through the years, stressed the need of more and better training for teachers; Barney in the middle of the last century observed that "the best interests of our children call for the employment of gifted, skillful, carefully trained, efficient, devoted teachers" who "should know how to remove prejudice, conciliate esteem, and excite attention; should be able to soothe or arouse; and should be so well acquainted with the faculties and powers which they are to educate, develop, and brace with proper discipline, as to be able to touch the right spring, with the right pressure, at the right time." That is the substance of all that can be said today about this matter.

Twenty years later Smart deplored the lack of centers of teacher training in Ohio, saying that "Normal colleges are as necessary as medical colleges. The injury to the mind of a child caused by the stupidity of an ignorant teacher may not be as apparent but it is just as real as the maiming of the body by the unskillful use of a surgical instrument."

The same sentiment finds expression by Harvey, Burns, Hancock, Corson, Bonebrake, and others, and in 1909, Zeller tells us that public-school men and appreciative friends of education "are of one mind upon the fact that the teacher is the most vital force, the most effective agency in the improvement of the schools. They realize the fact that fine and costly schoolhouses with all the modern equipments count for something, but that well-prepared, well-trained, cultured, skillful teachers count for vastly more than all these."

Today in Ohio, with four normal schools of state-wide support and a college of education and other local normal schools, we are still emphasizing the "skills" in teaching—skill in imparting knowledge, skill in provoking thought and encouraging expression, skill in reading the mind and purpose of the pupil, skill in stimulating activities and in encouraging tendencies. All this presupposes a comprehensive knowledge by the teacher of the subject under discussion, the ability to state analogies and portray contrasts and to relate the subject to other known subjects; the ability also to use the proper tools, whether they be books, physical materials, or laboratory apparatus, and all at exactly the right juncture and in such manner as not to arrest the stream of thought or distort the mental picture being created.

Teaching thus is soul-effusing, life-consuming for the teacher, and thrilling, absorbing and life-creating for the learner. The greatest teachers, like Pestalozzi, have cherished skill and expertness in dealing with the subject and also have been kindled with the fervor of emotion stirred by the great enterprise of enriching life and developing personality; they have made a consecration of talents and energies to the development in youth of purpose and zeal and accomplishment.

The College of Education is presenting a program for this Seventh Ohio Educational Conference which grows out of the conviction that skill or expertness on the part of the teacher should now become the focal point of thought and discussion, and, further, that a distinct contribution can be made here at this session to a determination of the elements required to produce this quality.

The University extends cordial greetings to the teachers of Ohio, welcomes those who come for our benefit and pleasure from other states, and desires the happiness and satisfaction of all who honor the University by their attendance.

DEMONSTRATIONS AND EXHIBITS

TESTS AND MEASUREMENTS
Education Building

Because of the confusing mass of material which has now accumulated a method of presentation different from that used at previous conferences has become necessary. This year only a careful selection of the most valuable and best-known tests will be displayed. However, the older and less-known tests will be available in the exhibit room in a specially constructed file for those who wish to examine them. The most valuable tests will be arranged by subject and type for ready reference. It will thus be possible for any one who is planning a testing program to locate the best available tests for his work, with a minimum of trouble. Lists of tests issued by the various publishers, bibliographies of books on tests and their use, and other material will be available for distribution. Some one who is familiar with tests will be constantly in attendance to answer the questions which may be asked by visitors.

FINE ARTS
Hayes Hall, Room 214

The Department of Fine Arts will have an exhibit of students' work in Room 214, Hayes Hall.

FINE ARTS
Library, Mantel Room

The American Association of University Women will have an exhibit of paintings and drawings done by the students of the Fine Arts Departments in the colleges of Ohio.

HOME ECONOMICS
Campbell Hall

The Home Economics Nursery School in Campbell Hall will be open to visitors from 9:00 to 12:30, Friday morning.

TEXTBOOKS AND PERIODICALS
Education Building

Textbooks for elementary schools, junior high schools, and senior high schools, as well as professional periodicals, may be examined in the library of the Bureau of Educational Research, Education Building.

CONFERENCE NOTES

The management will appreciate prompt attention in the matter of personal registration as soon as visitors reach the campus.

Cafeteria service may be had either at the Ohio Union or at Campbell Hall (Home Economics Cafeteria). Many restaurants and tea rooms near the campus provide satisfactory meals also.

For the convenience of Conference visitors, checkrooms for parcels and hand luggage will be operated in the Education Building and the University Library. There will be no charge for this service, and visitors are requested to refrain from proffering tips to the attendants.

The reduction of railroad fares depends upon the number of certificates turned in for validation. Consequently, this should be attended to during the early hours of the Conference. A minimum number of two hundred and fifty certificates is required to secure reduced fares.

Conference visitors who have information about records having to do with early education in Ohio, which are available for study, are requested to get in touch with members of the Department of History of Education, preferably during their office hours as announced elsewhere in this Bulletin.

All officials who are in immediate charge of the different Conference activities will have their headquarters in the Education Building, High Street at Seventeenth Avenue. Persons who desire conferences with other members of the faculty should consult the list of office hours elsewhere on this page.

REDUCED RAILROAD FARES

A reduction of one and one-half fare on the "Certificate Plan" will apply for school people attending the annual meeting of the Ohio State Educational Conference to be held at Ohio State University, April 7, 8, and 9, 1927, and also for dependent members of their families. Directions for obtaining the reduced fare are:

1. Tickets at the regular one-way tariff fare for the going journey may be obtained on any of the following dates (but not on any other date), April 4–April 9. Be sure that, when purchasing your going ticket, you request a "certificate." Do not make the mistake of asking for a "receipt."

2. Present yourself at the railway station for ticket and certificate at least thirty minutes before you will begin your journey.

3. Certificates are not kept at all stations. If you inquire at your home station, you can ascertain whether certificates and through tickets can be obtained to the place of meeting. If not obtainable at your home station, the agent will inform you at what station they can be obtained. You can, in such case, purchase a local ticket to the station which has certificates in stock, where you can purchase a through ticket and at the same time ask for and obtain a certificate to the place of meeting.

4. Immediately on your arrival at the meeting present your certificate to the endorsing officer, E. J. Ashbaugh, secretary of Executive Committee, in the Education Building. The reduced fare for the return journey will not apply unless you are properly identified as provided by the certificate.

5. Arrangements have been made for validation of certificates by a Special Agent of the Carriers on April 7–9, if the required minimum of 250 certificates is presented.

6. No refund of fare will be made either on account of failure to obtain a proper certificate or on account of failure to have the certificate validated.

7. So as to prevent disappointment, it must be understood that the reduction on the return journey is not guaranteed, but is contingent on an attendance of not less than 250 members of the organization at the meeting and dependent members of their families, holding regularly issued certificates obtained from ticket agents at starting points, showing payment of regular one-way tariff fare of not less than 67 cents on the going journey.

8. If the necessary minimum of 250 certificates is presented to the special agent as above explained, and your certificate is duly validated, you will be entitled, up to and including April 13, 1927, to a return ticket via the same route over which you made the going journey at one-half the regular one-way tariff fare from the place of meeting to the point at which your certificate was issued.

9. Return tickets issued at reduced fare will not be good on any limited train on which such reduced fare transportation is not honored.
